Practical guidance and support for schools to help meet the requirement to promote Community Cohesion

DEED offers schools a flexible, negotiable programme of support and training to meet all aspects of the requirement to promote Community Cohesion. Using OFSTED guidelines, our training will help you to plan outstanding provision for your school.

DEED presents this work in partnership with local Education Consultant Peter Barton, former Senior Inspector for Dorset and Education Officer for UNICEF

Ideal for: Headteachers, Senior Leadership Teams, whole school staff and Governing Bodies

Available as: Twilight, evening, half day or full day sessions or as a bespoke programme

Presented to: Individual schools, school clusters, school pyramids or school partnerships

The programme includes:

- Definitions of key terms
- Guidance on auditing your school's current provision
- Preparing your school effectively for the new OFSTED Framework, including a model SEF illustrating what a school with outstanding provision would be like
- A sample school action plan for promoting Community Cohesion
- Curriculum planning tools for teaching and learning at all Key Stages

In addition you will be given practical strategies

- for promoting positive attitudes towards identity and diversity including Multicultural Britain and What it means to be British
- for helping children and young people to recognise and to challenge stereotypes, prejudice and discrimination
- to help learners engage with 'the community' at school level and also on the level of their locality, the UK and the world

Community Cohesion complements many other aspects of school life including:

- Equality policies and action plans
- Children's Rights
- Every Child Matters
- SEAL/PSHCE
